

The Teen With FAS

This is a girl who has FAS,
Who has problems with her peers,
Who does not like to be bothered much,
And who does not talk much of her fears.

This girl you see does not seem right,
She seems weirder than the rest,
She has swiftly changing moods,
Like the ebbing of the tides.

But yet this girl is special,
Her love of music,
Knows no bounds,
While playing two instruments.

And yet though she is smart,
She does not `tend school full time,
For some reason this bugs you so much,
As her intelligence and wit is known all around.

This girl you see is talented,
That may be enough to know,
That even though she has problems,
She can still have the same quality of life...
As you do.

A Poem By: Sarah
Weddings@fun_er_als™©
November 22, 2005